

He said something about growing up near Hilltop Steak House.

Lawrence LaFerla grew up north of Boston, specifically about 500 yards behind the Hilltop Steak House in Saugus, Massachusetts. He was the youngest of five children and spent his childhood in the 1960s, surrounded by the music and culture of that era. His early interest in music was influenced by his older sisters, who introduced him to records by The Beatles and other iconic artists. This suburban Boston upbringing near Hilltop Steak House formed the backdrop for his musical and cultural development before he became active in Boston's underground music scene.^[1]
